

ACT data

In the last 30 months (January 2021– June 2023), WorkSafe ACT conducted 48 inspections involving silica or stone cutting.

During the same period, the Regulator issued:

In 2022 WorkSafe ACT commissioned a research project on Silica dust exposure which explored attitudes, perceptions and practices within the ACT.

The research involved speaking to over 30 different stakeholders in hour long interviews including workers, safety officers, clients, business owners and more.

The report has shown a snapshot of the current state of silica dust safety perceptions, awareness and practices across ACT construction sites
